

Adele Dorothy Ciampa

was born in New Jersey (USA) in 1966. She is a reader and consultant at Sony Pictures and other main production companies in Europe and USA. She wrote some of Italy's most famous soap-operas, such as "Un posto al sole" (Rai 3), "Vivere" (Canale 5), "Cuori rubati" (Rai 2) and has now specialized in TV-series. She graduated in Literature and Philosophy and followed many writing courses with the world's most famous screenwriting 'gurus', as Bob McKee, Jurgen Wolff, John Vorhaus. She earned a diploma at the Mediaset Fiction School; followed the Arista European Screenwriting Workshops; and studied drama with Italian famous writer Dacia Maraini. She also followed the New Yourk University course in directing and acting. Besides writing, she is a translator and a teacher at Daniele Cirpiani's TV Academy. Recently, she's written the musical "Mary of Nazareth", with music by Stelvio Cipriani (Oscar-winner for "Anonimo Veneziano").